The flock was separated into two compartments in the sheep const have done all the terrible things which they are threatening. Back in the mists of time, even before the days of the Revolution, Freehold enjoyed the distinction of being the seat of government of one of the King's own orbinal Jersey counties. A royal grant betrowed the juste of a great ducal name to confer upon her, and in the strife for the freedom to carry the name while shaking off its proprietorship she was the scene of one of the pliched battles that are supposed to have done a little somethins toward making her a part of the new nation of the West. That battle monument of hers is not of the things that are happening to her just now as it may seem at first blush. The ancient court house and jail linked themselves to that pile of granite so loyally that they seem to have grown together, as it were, and even the shift ing of the population centre to points far off and her getting further and further away from the beaten tracks of more modern travel have not sufficed to tear them apart. There they have stood this century or more, the county buildings circling "the Green," with the lofty battle monument, like a lightning rod to draw the thunder from the sweep over them, in their midst, calm two bartenders early yesterday.

The ancient town was delighted to find support in her strength in quarters where she had not looked for it. Even the coast towns sprang to the advocacy of the Freehold view. Monmouth was a grand old county, they proclaimed; a historical scounty; and they wanted to remain part of her traditions and would never, no. never, consent to cut away from her proud and glorious battle monument. FAST MAIL TRAIN WRECKED. STRIKING BUTCHERS SAY WOMEN DON'T HELP

> Close Shops, So Why Should the Others?

Women Themselves in Disputes as to Blame for High Prices.

The members of the United Retail Rosher Butchers Association of Greater New York, who decided on Friday to close their shops until the wholesalers come down in their prices and the women of the East Side cease to attack their establishments, continued their detiberations yesterday afternoon in Eagle Hall, Forty-third street and First avenue. There were 2,000 butchers crowded into the room and their angry mutterings all but drowned the voices of the speakers and floated down to the street to inspire the brethren who couldn't squeeze their way into the hall.

The butchers were wroth, not so much at the wholesalers, who have repeatedly given them to understand that they cannot sell meat for any less than they are doing while they have to pay so much for cattle on the hoof, but at the women of the East Side, who, the butchers say, are not backing the association up in its effort to bring down the prices. Benjamin Lastfogel, president of the association, caused intense excitement by telling the assembled butchers that he and a vigilance committee appointed at the meeting on Friday had gone to a meeting of the women at 112 Cannon street on Saturday night expecting to make some agreement whereby normal conditions might be restored but that the women had ejected the butchers' committee forcibly "What we want to know," said Last-that the women are always talking about. If they are the people then the people don't want the prices of meat to be brought down evidently. Else for why should they put us out of their meeting? Another cause for mutterings was the news, whispered furtively about the room. that several butchers had not closed their in defiance of the decision of the association. Some of the deliberators appeared to envy the bold brethren and asked each other when they got to the sidewalk why everybody shouldn't open up if a few were allowed to do business without being

THAW HEARING TO-DAY.

Slayer of Stanford White to Have Third Chance at Freedom.

WHITE PLAINS, June 16 .- Everything is ready for the hearing to-morrow morning before Lustice Keogh in the Suprema Court at White Plains, when Harry K. And Some of Them Didn't Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, will make his third attempt to gain his liberty on a writ of habeas corpus. The sole question to be tried out before Justice Keogh, without a jury, will be whether he is now sane. Thaw contends that he is APPEAL TO THE RABBIS rational and that he is being kept in the asylum through a conspiracy.

The hearing will be heard in the White Plains court house and as the court room is not a large one the doors will be closed every day as soon as it is full. Sheriff Doyle will have an extra staff of court officers on duty to preserve order, as omicers on duty to preserve order, as it is believed that there will be a rush of spectators to hear the testimony.

Thaw was taken from the State asylum at Matteawan to the White Plains jail eight days ago and since that time he has occupied a large room in the hospital section of the juil. He receives his meals from a nearby hotel and his quarters are more comfortable than the room assigned to him at Matteawan. His mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, and her daughter Alice, formerly the Countess of Yarmouth, arrived at White Plains on Sunday afternoon. They have engaged a suite of rooms at the Hotel Carlyon Arms, a short distance from the jail, where they will remain until the hearings are concluded. Although considerable testimony will be read, it is believed that the hearings will occupy at least two weeks. Then Justice Keogh will start on his vacation and it is thought he will not render a decision until his return from a trip to Europe.

Thaw will be represented by Clarence Shearn, Charles Morschauser and Henry R. Barrett, while William T. Jerome will appear for Attorney-General Carmody and he will be aided by Deputy Attorney-General Kellogg.
